MISSION:

To improve the lives of our members

VALUES-BASED BANKING

Finance in service to people and the planet

PEOPLE

PROSPERITY

We believe local government employees and their partners are true “servant leaders” to their families, work, communities and the credit union. They are focused on the personal growth and well-being of the people and communities to which they belong or serve.

- ▶ Our staff and volunteers will emulate the leadership model members provide.
- ▶ Servant leadership and selfless actions will drive us, recognizing and relying on each other’s strengths.
- ▶ We all shall serve in any capacity to ensure independence of LGFCU.
- ▶ We empower employees at all levels to contribute their strengths toward the mission of improving members’ lives.

We’re evolving the organizational structure to align activity toward direct service to our members upon independence.

- ▶ Departments deliberately work collaboratively, increasing efficiency and improving outcomes rather than fostering independent efforts and successes.
- ▶ Everyone in our organizations demonstrates to each other and our membership an authentic representation of our values.
- ▶ Our differences make us stronger, and every staff member is welcomed as an individual contributor. Diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) are baked into who we are and what we do, and we’re working to be better.
- ▶ We’ve built teams with the most experienced talent to create a financial institution of the future.

We have created a new credit union with no peers in purpose and innovation.

- ▶ We have launched integrations that optimize member experiences and prioritize rapid delivery of new services that empower our members to build wealth and give them back some of their precious time.
- ▶ We’re scaling technology and talent to launch the premier financial services infrastructure and business model.

Independence for LGFCU provides incredible momentum as we build a community development company offering financial services to improve and strengthen North Carolina. We tirelessly work to position our credit union as the financial institution of the future.

We hope the following material helps you identify with the important role we play in the lives of our members and North Carolina communities, and how our two credit unions together will meet the needs of local government in ways no others can or will.

Thank you for your involvement, membership and support of our financial cooperatives.

WHO WE ARE

Local Government Federal Credit Union (LGFCU) has become known throughout North Carolina as a symbol of aspiration and innovation. That's why we're happy to say we're well on our way to our 400,000+ members being served through the robust digital and local channels built for our other credit union, Civic. We're moving fast. And there's much to come.

We fervently believe that we can all do well by doing good. Our credit unions were founded on the conviction that banking can work in service to people and where they live, striving for prosperity for all. We work toward this every day.

However, before we look forward, we should look back.

HOW WE STARTED

For LGFCU, Civic is an innovative next step. But an innovative model is not new for us.

Founded in 1983, LGFCU had a very novel beginning as we partnered with State Employees' Credit Union (SECU) to serve members across the state using SECU branches and technology. This partnership has a range of complex operational requirements, and as both credit unions evolved, it was clear that updating technologies on both sides would be challenging if the partnership remained intact. There is also a considerable financial commitment required of LGFCU.

In 2014, we learned SECU would cease serving our commercial members — largely, volunteer fire departments across the state. SECU offered a generous timeline, but this hastened the immediate need for a credit union with separate technology and operations. Other factors included federal regulators' concern for our reliance on SECU as we grew larger, but continued service to our members was our driving force.

And so, work on Civic began in 2014 to serve members who work in and support local government and communities across North Carolina, small business owners and nonprofits. Civic also welcomes volunteers, members' families, and other citizens who embrace the culture of building a better world. It will take many of us to create and sustain thriving communities. Civic is built for the same people who work in and support local governments across North Carolina.

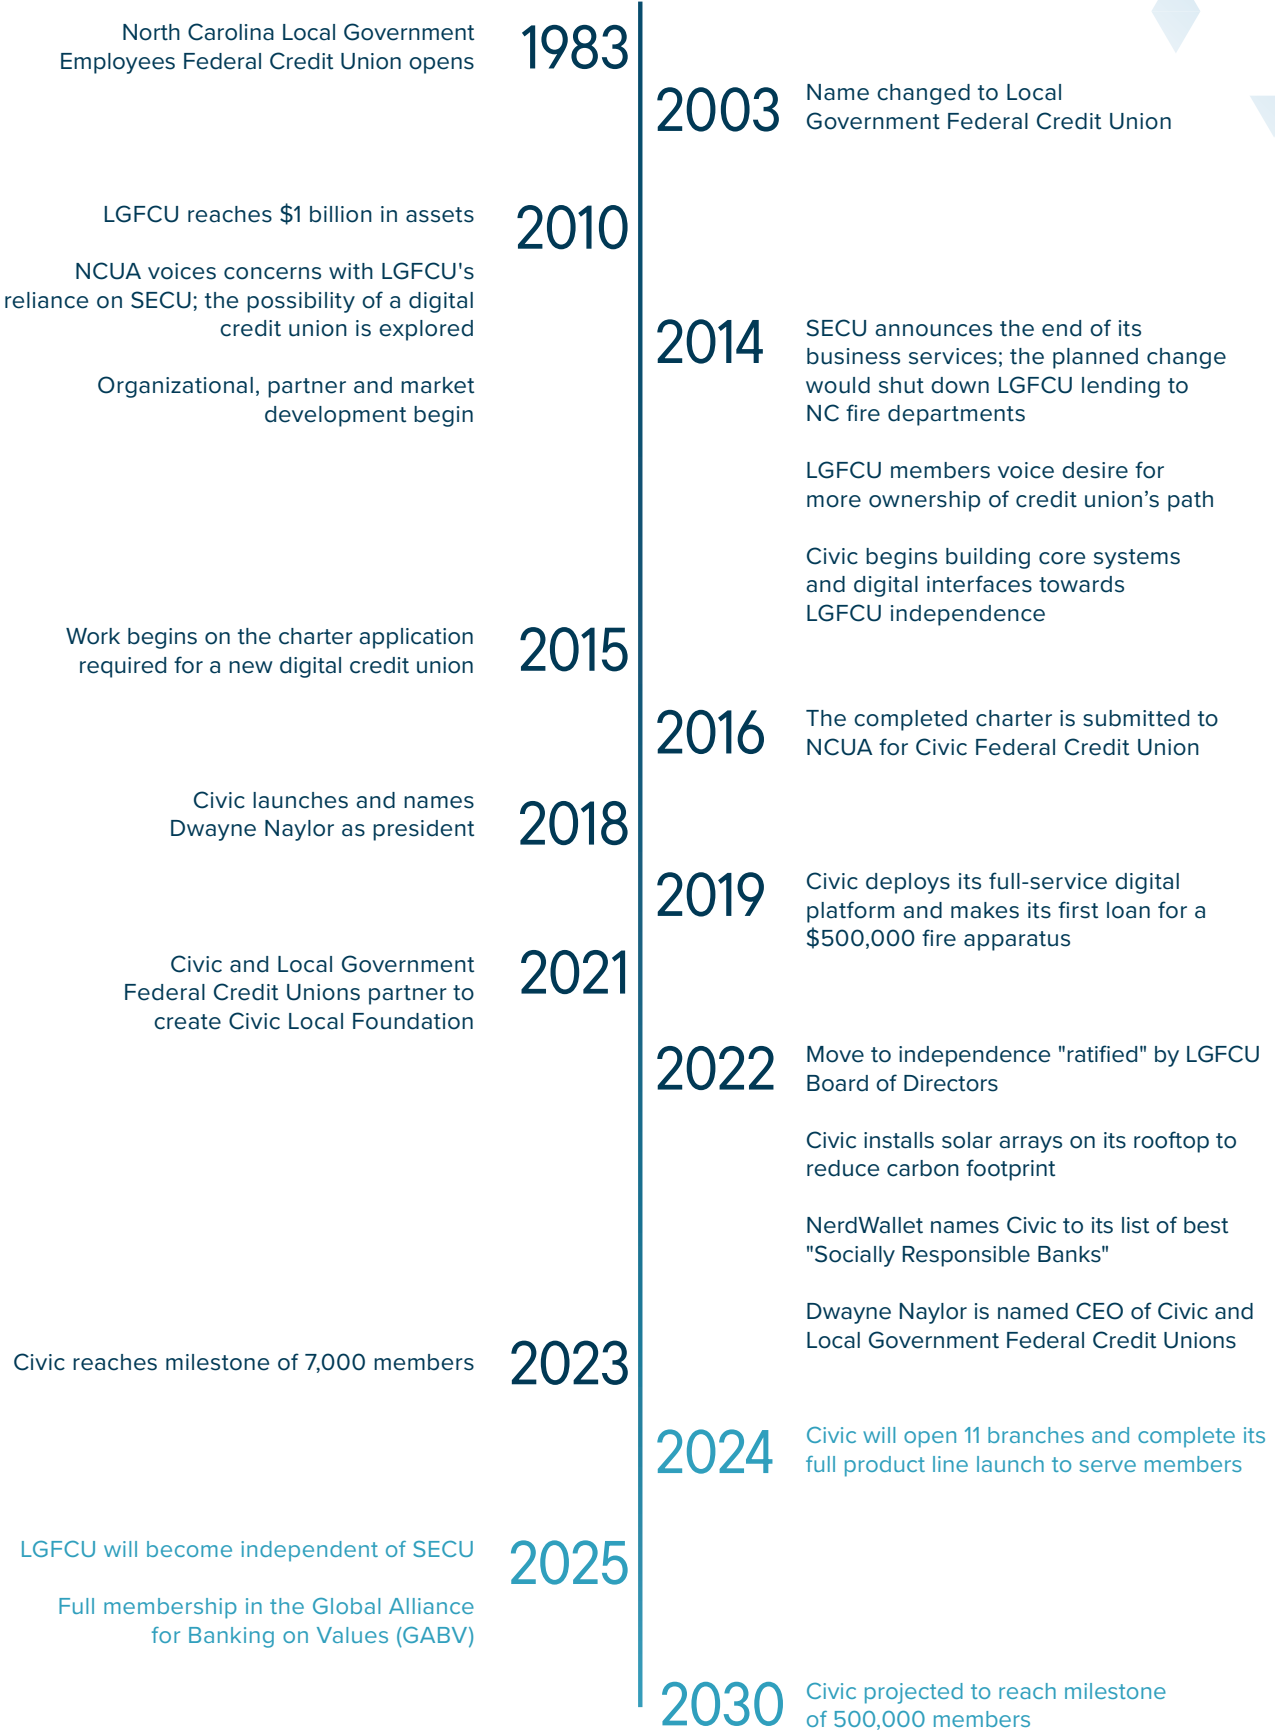

What drew me to LGFCU was ... the fact that it took an exceptional look at local government employees' needs."

TIMELINE

WHERE WE'RE HEADED

Civic isn't just about serving members; it's about building a community of people united in their desire to make a positive impact on society, culture and the environment. Our strategy is based in financial inclusion and community development, both of which are sustainable activities and drivers of growth and relevance.

Local government employees directly impact the quality of life for citizens in our communities, and our communities are essential to building a strong local economy, increasing the standard of living in North Carolina.

At our core, we care about your future. Our future. We'll work hard to see things from different perspectives and take an honest look at who we are, what we do, and how we do it. As we move to gain independence from SECU, we take a deliberate look at each action, asking ourselves to understand ...

Whom or what does this help, and whom or what might it hurt?

What is the actual environmental, social, and economic impact?

How will this be sustained, for how long and to what result?

Our journey toward a local, digital credit union has been guided by the basic premise that this credit union exists to serve the members who have entrusted their resources to us. The time has come after 40 years for us to independently serve members. Our duty demands that we respond to external forces and disruptions that could negatively impact members, and we think it best to find the best path forward for local government and the people in service to it.

THE BIGGER PICTURE

First and foremost, our Board and our leadership have a non-negotiable obligation to ensure the safety and soundness of this credit union, foster the right conditions for the credit union to thrive, and continue offering the financial products and services that help members achieve their financial goals and prosper.

LGFCU will separate from State Employees' Credit Union (SECU) on June 1, 2025, and Civic's technology, channels and staff will serve members after separation. There are several reasons for this change.

1. The financial services industry is being flipped on its head. The traditional model is no longer feasible in the face of competition from Google, Venmo, Apple, Amazon, Walmart, and Square, to name a few.
2. At the same time, members have consistently shared that better rates are key to living a better financial life, and we agree. But no one will be able to pay higher rates on a traditional branch model, invest in technology, and create a better digital experience. Our data shows a portion of our members are turning to online financial providers, who offer better rates because of their "limited overhead" model.
3. Our members are telling us they want more, and their transactions show us that they are choosing non-branch activities more often.
4. If we do not adapt and evolve, our members will not be served as well as they should be.
5. This path is not new. It was always considered inevitable when we built LGFCU. And now we're here.

GUIDING OUR DIRECTION

LGFCU's Advisory Council, made up of 600+ members, has helped to guide the direction for this journey. We are indebted to their thoughtful feedback and their representation in our decision-making, and they will continue to guide us as we evolve. This group of volunteers is growing, with much of the interest generated through word of mouth. Our members are excited about co-creating this credit union with us, grateful that they're being heard and optimistic about our shared future.

We've also had feedback from the National Credit Union Administration (NCUA), the government agency overseeing member accounts at thousands of credit unions. The feedback has been the same: LGFCU's separation from SECU is crucial so that both credit unions can continue to serve members and provide the products and services members need without reliance on another institution.

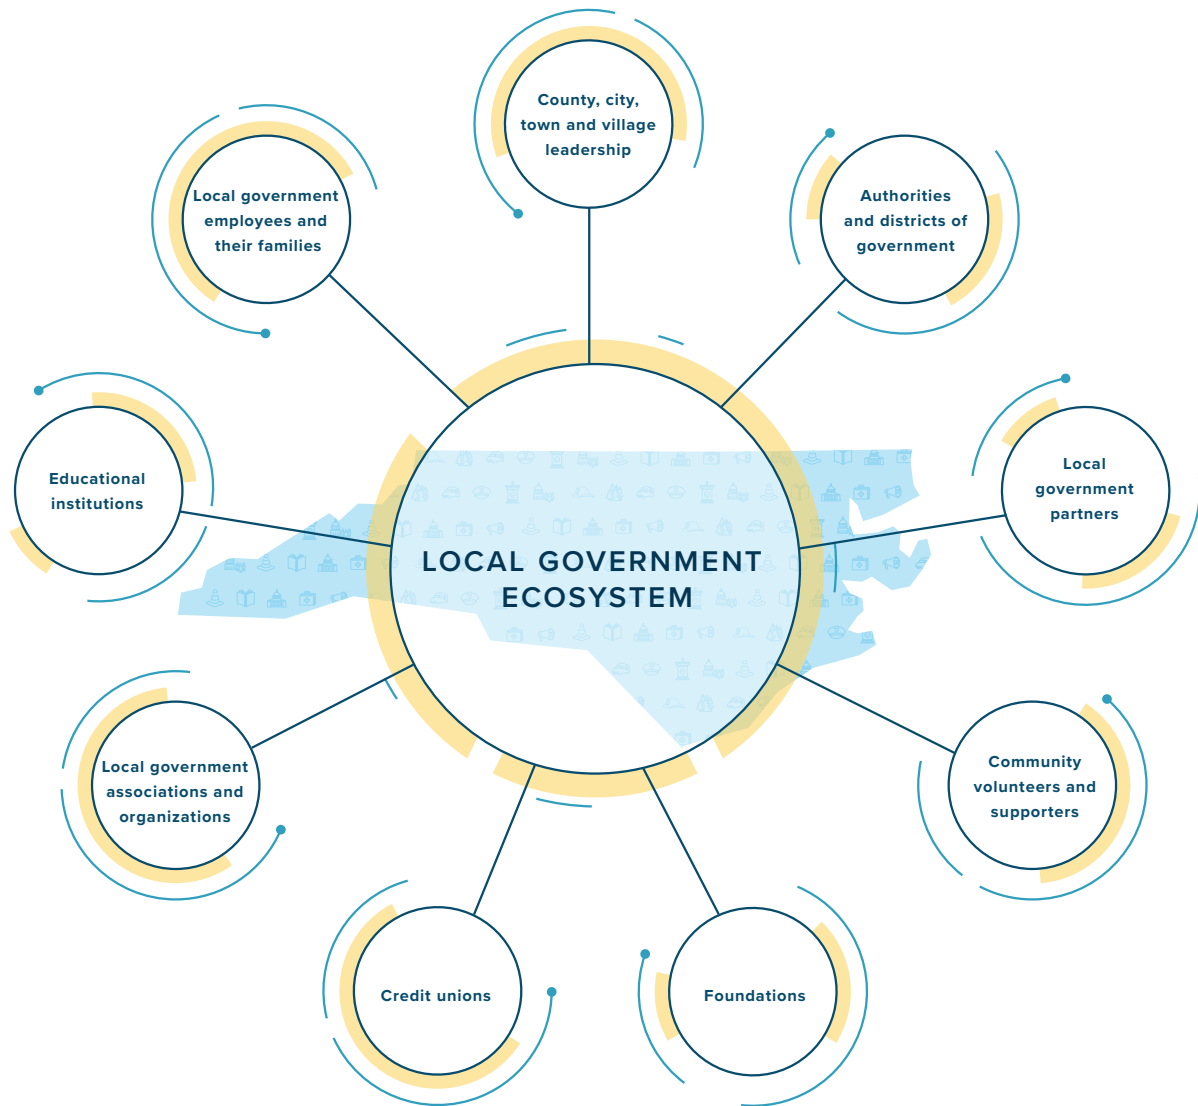

LGFCU is an institution that helps build community. Without a car or a home, it's hard to be a part of a community."

Dan B., Bakersville

The Credit Union knows the steadfastness of local government employees and cares about its members."

THE COMPANY WE KEEP

We are not a vendor to local government or our cities, counties and towns, and we don't aspire to serve as a commodity for members. We are an integral part of North Carolina communities, and in fact, we chose the name "Civic" because it suggests our proximity to community and municipal affairs. We engage our stakeholders deeply and passionately, including the members we serve and the partnerships we foster to help us embed value in communities across the state.

Our partners are educational institutions, local government agencies and associations, and other organizations committed to building thriving communities and a more sustainable world.

This is the ecosystem of local government in North Carolina, a model anchored by our credit unions and grounded in a platform of using finance for good.

HOW OUR VALUES DRIVE US

You may have noted that we're not an average credit union, and this is not just about fairly-priced products and services. Yes, our members come first. They always will, but we need to go further. At Civic, that means we live by a "triple bottom line," summarized as a focus on "people, planet and prosperity."

The people — including our members — make North Carolina one of our country's most desirable states in which to live and work. They are locally engaged individuals, striving to build vibrant communities. But not every individual is well served by the financial industry, and that's why financial inclusion is a significant part of our DNA. This means we're dedicated to expanding access to financial services and opportunities to help bring people into the financial mainstream.

Another part of the "people" equation is our staff, deeply dedicated people committed to our values in support of our members, their communities and the exceptional state of North Carolina. Our "people first" model invites all voices to be heard at the table.

We share the planet with billions of other people. Even though we are a North Carolina-based credit union, we know our impact is felt far and wide, ripples across water. As a financial cooperative with a deliberate focus on local government and the communities of this state, we strive to lessen our environmental impact, learn from our members, follow the lead of local governments, and identify our role in supporting a healthy environment for ourselves and for the generations to come. That's our obligation when we consider the future of our beautiful state and of this world.

Civic's campus includes planet-friendly features, like a large rooftop solar array that helps offset our carbon footprint and several electric vehicle chargers for public use.

Prosperity is our aspiration for all of us; we work to help all people prosper in the capacity that suits them as individuals with unique, valid and respected needs. We're focused on helping North Carolinians build wealth, with a wide lens on who we can serve. We believe our differences don't separate us — they unite and make us stronger.

We'll always prioritize people and our planet, actively engaging our communities to promote prosperity for all, and to minimize our environmental footprint and strengthen, develop and establish new local government ecosystems in service to our communities.

VALUES-BASED BANKING AND THE REAL ECONOMY

Values-based banking serves to ensure we have the resources we need for today and tomorrow. And by we, we mean everyone. This form of sustainability simultaneously delivers economic, social, and environmental benefits to all stakeholders — the triple bottom line model.

By implementing values-based banking, we keep money close to home and invest locally. This ecosystem for circular investment in the towns, cities and counties that we serve is known as the “Real Economy.” Through this business model, members do good for themselves and the communities around them.

The most visible example of how we serve the “Real Economy” is our dedication to the first responder community. Civic was built specifically to serve this unique group when their financial needs were no longer being met through other credit union channels. For more than a decade, we have built relationships, supported the fire community and provided sound lending that gives fire, rescue and Emergency Medical Services (EMS) a fair deal. As of November 2023, we have underwritten a total of $327 million in loans for fire departments across the state. These loans allow the first responder community to get what they need to save lives, keep communities safe, and retain affordable homeowner insurance costs.

Think globally, act locally.

BANKING ON VALUES

Our plan isn't solely about offering members new opportunities for transactions. This is much bigger: We're part of a movement of leading purpose-driven banks, an elite group that stimulates growth for thriving communities and helps foster prosperity for members. Simply put, we're using finance to build a better world."

Dwayne Naylor, CEO of Civic and Local Government Federal Credit Unions

Finance plays a pivotal role in shaping our society. Every loan and investment impacts our communities, environment, and economic future, for better or worse. Many people depend on access to finance to live up to their full potential and enjoy a decent and dignified life.

Banking and finance, therefore, come with great responsibility. Banks are not simply neutral brokers of money. They are often creators of money. By deciding how to allocate money, banks are important agents of change.

With that in mind, there's a growing number of pioneers and banking leaders from around the world with a values-driven approach to banking. They have joined forces with a shared mission to put finance at the service of people and the planet.

Global Alliance for Banking on Values

We call them values-based banks, and they form the Global Alliance for Banking on Values (GABV). Among these international leaders, we are learning, collaborating, and doing our part in North Carolina to build a more sustainable world. We're raising the bar for financial institutions everywhere, encouraging our peers to invest in the communities they serve.

To help us better understand some aspects of the commercial solar market, we have underwritten four commercial solar loans in North Carolina. This involvement allows us to indirectly support a sustainable initiative and learn what works for North Carolina. According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration, North Carolina ranks No. 3 in the U.S. for solar energy production.

We're setting a new standard for financial institutions in North Carolina — one that delivers positive change for local communities and improves our corner of the world."

Ken Noland, LGFCU Board Chair
